About SMR

The Society for Melanoma Research (SMR) is a diverse organization of scientific and medical investigators devoted to alleviating the suffering of people with melanoma.

The SMR was founded to unify the field by increasing communication among researchers and building bridges of collaboration between basic, translational and clinical investigators.

The Society for Melanoma Research's principal goal is bringing together members who vary widely in their professions—from basic researchers to translational researchers to clinicians. Each shares an abiding devotion to improving the lives of those suffering from melanoma through research.

About the Congress

The Society for Melanoma Research (SMR) is a group of scientists working to find the mechanisms responsible for melanoma and, consequently, new therapies for this cancer. SMR contributes to advances in melanoma research by bringing together researchers in a non-competitive way to unite the scientific community.

This congress brings together the leaders in the field of basic and translational melanoma research and melanoma clinical trialists from around the world. The conference will be three and one half days of educational and informative sessions related to the growing field of melanoma research as well as pathway-targeted, immunotherapy and other novel approaches to melanoma treatment.
